

Letter of Recommendation – Nicoline Lodahl Isachsen

I have had the pleasure of working closely with Nicoline at Demant since May 2024. Nicoline has been with us in Team Usability & CoCreation both as a student assistant and as a full-time usability engineering intern as part of her studies. In both roles, she has consistently demonstrated strong ownership, independence, and a clear ability to drive work forward with minimal guidance.

Additionally, she has independently planned, executed, and reported several user studies and UX evaluations. The insights and analyses she generates are consistently well-structured and have had a direct impact on product improvements and stakeholder alignment.

Nicoline has a strong understanding of UX principles and applies them in a very practical and grounded way. What sets her apart is her ability to cut through complexity and quickly identify what truly matters for the user and the product. She does not overcomplicate her work but rather brings clarity and structure to both problem spaces and design solutions.

Beyond her design skills, Nicoline is a strong collaborator and a great colleague. She communicates in a clear and grounded way, which makes her highly effective when working with both technical teams and stakeholders.

Overall, Nicoline is a highly capable UX Designer with strong product thinking. We have been very happy having Nicoline in our team, and I cannot recommend her enough to whoever might be lucky enough to hire her for any role within UX or product design.

Please do not hesitate to reach out if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Lisbeth Nøhr Demant
